The sighing are in the trees, in the leaves, on the ground, in the pine needles, in our woollen hats, in our hair and in the pockets of our jackets.

We are building a cabin, a cabin of branches. We are trailing the branches. It is quite hard. It is ready! I am sitting inside and you are out there. Can you see me?

Shelter trees is a philosophical dance performance where we experience the joy of sharing moments with a friend and the somewhat prickly feeling that can occur when collaborating and building something together.
